TO PURCHASE FIRE TRUCK

COUNCIL EXPECTS TO AUTHORIZE NEW EQUIPMENT.

TO CARRY CHEMICALS

Four Tanks Each to Contain Forty Gallons.—Will Replace Small Hose Tanks.

Maryville will have a new fire fighting apparatus within the next two months. The purchase of a chemical fire truck by the mayor is authorized in an ordinance which was introduced at a special session of the city council Saturday night. The ordinance is laid on the table for seven days before final passage and will become effective ten days after that. The council will pass the ordinance provided no objections are filed.

The ordinance authorizes the mayor to purchase from the Boyer Fire Apparatus company of Logansport, Ind., a Boyer four-tank chemical fire truck, complete, for $3,268.

The contract, when approved by the city council, calls for the delivery of the new chemical fire truck within sixty days.

The truck is built on a new model 1 1/2 ton Graham truck, equipped with a Victory six motor, which has four speeds forward and one reverse. Each of the four chemical tanks on the truck has a capacity of forty gallons and the truck is equipped with 300 feet of three-fourth inch chemical hose, tested for 400 pounds pressure.

According to the specifications listed with the council, the truck carries two ladders, one 24-foot extension rapid hoist ladder, one 12-foot rock ladder and one 10-foot pike pole. A pick ax, 36-inch crowbar, alarm system of the locomotive bell type and two three-gallon auxiliary hand fire extinguishers are included in the equipment.

The machine is to be finished in red with lettering in gold leaf and shadowed in black pencil stripes.

The truck is to be delivered at Maryville for the purchase price of $3,268. The small truck which the city now owns, only used for carrying hose, probably will be sold when the new truck arrives.

Mayor W. O. Garrett said the proposed new chemical truck is one of the newest models of fire fighting machines and he believes that the ordinance will be passed by the council, as he has heard of no objections. The money for the truck is to be taken from the city's general fund, under the terms of ordinance.

Helps Townships to Build Guilford Road

Washington and Grant Are Allowed
$291 by County Court—Road
Northeast of City Closed.

The township boards of Washington and Grant townships met with the county court this morning and made arrangements for dividing the expenses of building the grade on the road starting at the railroad track west of Guilford for a mile west to the new bridge over the Platte river. The new bridge, a 200-foot span was completed this year at an expense of $10,500 to the county.

The county, Grant and Washington townships agreed to divide the expenses for the approach to the bridge. These two townships have built up a high fill on the road east of the bridge and the county allowed Grant township $91 and Washington $200 toward the expenses of the fill.

The approach to the bridge cost $11,604.60, which was divided among the townships and the county as follows: Washington township, $852.90; Grant township, $286.90; and the county contributed $464.80.

The men who conferred with the court were James Brady, Bert Rimel and Roxie Hocker of Washington township and Otis Burns of Grant township.

The court ordered closing of the road which is located about seven miles northeast of Maryville adjacent to the J. A. Wray land. The action was taken on the petition of A. B. Dowden and others, who sought to have the road vacated because they claimed it was of no use. The road extends north one-half mile and west forty feet.

The court expected to complete its business and adjourn by tonight.

RAINFALL IS .43 INCH OVER THE WEEK-END

Gentle but Steady Precipitation of Great Benefit to Crops, but Sunshine Is Needed.

Now for some sunshine. A much needed rain, although not heavy, was general over Northwest Missouri, starting Saturday and continuing gently through Sunday. All vegetation benefited from the moisture, particularly in those places which did not get the rains of last week.

J. R. Brink, official weather observer, reported that at 7 o'clock Sunday morning, when he measured the precipitation, it was .11 inch. Between then and this morning, .32 inch of rain fell, making a total of .43 inch of rain.

The lowest temperature was 51 degrees he stated, but the thermometer has not gone much higher than this point in the last two days.

SOON TO END LIQUIDATION

PARNELL AND HOPKINS BANK WORK OVER JUNE 15.

COURT APPROVES SALE

Costs Also Are Allowed Against Northwestern Bank at Burlington Junction.

Liquidation of the Parnell Bank and Bank of Hopkins, in charge of Deputy Commissioner of Finance P. H. Barrett, probably will be closed on June 15, when circuit court will be in session. This announcement was made in circuit court this morning when the deputy commissioner filed the reports of the sale of furniture and the bank building and lot of the Parnell bank.

The reports were approved by the court. Mr. Barrett reported that the furniture was sold for $266.92 and a Burroughs' posting machine for $250. The fixtures were charged in the bank property at $2,550 and the court allowed a loss of $2,038.08 as the result of the public sale, held May 28. The bank and lot upon which it is located were sold for $1,225 to Fremont Lyle. This property was charged at $4,000 on the bank's books and a loss of $2,775 was allowed.

Court and sheriff's costs, totaling $476.15, in the liquidation of the defunct Northwestern Bank of Burlington Junction were allowed by the court this morning. Eighty-six orders were made in circuit court, caused by the liquidation of the bank, from August 11, 1926 to June 2, 1928.

The costs included witness, jury and stenographer fees also. Thirty-three suits were brought by the bank, the report shows.

A decree of divorce was awarded in the suit of Samuel Harris, of near Hopkins, against Mrs. Ruth H. Harris, on charge of abandonment. Application for suit money and alimony were overruled and the defendant's cost bill was dismissed.

REGISTRATION IS TOMORROW

23d SUMMER TERM TO OPEN AT COLLEGE.

PROSPECTS ARE GOOD

Attendance at Least as Large as Last Summer Is Indicated.—Training School Also Open.

Registration for the twenty-third summer term of the College will start at 7.30 tomorrow morning in the West library on the first floor, it was announced at the College today. All faculty members and department chairmen will be present in the library to advise students in making up their programs.

In view of the increased enrollment for the spring term and short course, which closed last week, officials of the College are anticipating a summer student body at least as large as last summer. A substantial enrollment is expected in the College high school, and in the Training School, where the registration is limited.

Homer T. Phillips, head of the education department, announced today that registration in the Training School would start at 8.30 in the morning at the College. The first four grades will be conducted at the Franklin school in charge of Miss Frances Holliday, with Miss Elma Scott and Miss Vesta Wright as teachers. The grades at the College will be in charge of Miss Dora B. Smith, with Miss Mary Keith as supervisor of the teaching.

Regular classwork in the Training school will be held from 8 in the morning until noon and the College bus will furnish transportation for the pupils going to the College. Mr. Phillips said there is still room for several more pupils in each of the grades.

Classwork in the College proper will begin Wednesday morning. Classes will meet five times per week and will run from 7.30 in the morning to 4.05 in the afternoon. There will be no classes at the 10.15 period, as it is reserved for the weekly assemblies on Wednesday, the religious organizations on Tuesday, and various club meetings on Friday. This hour on the other two days will be held open for special organization meetings.

The hall was spotted this afternoon with groups of students, and particularly was there an attraction around the entrance to the office on second floor where the program for the summer quarter is posted.

At the registration tomorrow Miss Carrie Hopkins of the art department will serve as advisor to those students majoring in fine and industrial arts in the absence of Miss Olive S. DeLuce and Miss Lucille Lair, in the absence of Miss Blanche Dow, will advise those students majoring in foreign language.

An announcement from President Uel W. Lamkin, which is posted on the College bulletin board, states that the first regular assembly of the new quarter will be held Wednesday at the fourth period.

Miss Anne Mather, social director at Residence Hall, stated today that all the rooms at the hall had been engaged since Saturday, and that more than a dozen applications had to be refused. Residence Hall has a capacity of 138 women.

The present faculty has been augmented with eighteen new teachers for the summer term in addition to some who are returning from leaves of absence. Twelve of the regular faculty have taken leaves for the summer.

The term will close August 8.

Two Drivers Draw Police Court Fines

Robert Moody Pays for Having No License.—Marion Frede Charged With Reckless Driving.

Two fines were assessed in police court this morning by Judge Joseph H. Saylor, one for operating a motor vehicle in the city without a Maryville license and the other for reckless driving. The penalty was a fine of $5 and costs of $5.65 in each case.

Robert Moody was arrested yesterday by Chief of Police B. F. Dougan on the charge of having no city license. Marion Frede, a youth in his teens, was the defendant in the charge of reckless driving of an automobile. His arrest also was by Chief Dougan.

Frede, so the officers said, drove in a reckless manner on West Second street yesterday. He was driving a Ford and hit a car parked at Main and Second street in front of Price's store, ran into the curb near the Library and landed in front of the parsonage of the M. E. Church, South, damaging his car to some extent.

CHESTER KIME TO THE STATE FAIR SCHOOL

Bell Grove Boy Wins Right to Represent Nodaway County With Expenses Paid.

Chester Kime, age 13, who was graduated this spring from the Bell Grove school, southwest of Maryville, won the right to represent Nodaway county at the state fair school, which will be held in August in connection with the annual state fair at Sedalia.

Leslie G. Somerville, county superintendent of schools today announced that Kime had the highest average in the competitive examination which was given here Saturday at the State Teachers College. He had an average of 92 in three subjects. He was graded 91 in geography, 95 in agriculture and 90 in arithmetic.

Chester is the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. O. Kime. His expenses while he is at the school will be paid by the state fair. The only expense he will have to bear will be the transportation to Sedalia and return.

The county was represented last year by a boy from the same school district, Delmer W. Schooler, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Schooler.

Four boys took the state fair school examination Saturday conducted by Mr. Somerville.

Second place went to Norman Jones, of Union district, a son of Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Jones, who had an average of 86 2-3.

Forrest, Conrad of Elm Grove was third and J. W. McGinness, of the Mount Vernon district, fourth.

CANDIDATES ARE ARRIVING

TWO DEMOCRATIC ASPIRANTS IN COUNTY TODAY.

SENATOR BROWN HERE

Newspaper Man, Almost Blind, in Secretary of State Race.—McCawley Speaks Tonight.

Candidates for state offices are invading Maryville and Nodaway County.

Senator Dwight H. Brown of Poplar Bluff, Mo., a candidate for the Democratic nomination for secretary of state, was in Maryville this morning calling on a number of Democrats.

Senator A. L. McCawley of Carthage, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor, is scheduled to speak at the court house in Maryville this evening.

Senator Brown, who is almost totally blind, was accompanied here by V. I. Steward of Poplar Bluff. Until recently they were associated together in the publication of a daily newspaper at Poplar Bluff.

Senator Brown has not been able to read a newspaper or magazine since he was 8 years old. He employs a reader, who keeps him informed on current events and in this way he was enabled to write a daily column of editorial opinion and to supervise the news columns of his paper. He is a past president of the Missouri Press Association.

The visiting candidate today said the prospects for Democratic success in Missouri were never brighter. He added:

"We frequently hear the expression, 'Nothing succeeds like success,' and certainly the belief that the Democratic party is due to resume control of the state and national government is firing the voters of the party to a zeal seldom seen, and the ranks are being swelled by those who are convinced it is to the Democracy that the masses must look for relief."

"No party has a right to ask the votes of the people on any basis other than that of public service. The Democratic party comes again before the people on just that basis, pointing with pride to an illustrious past in administering the governmental affairs of Missouri and asking to be again trusted with power in order that the taxpayer's dollar may be more carefully conserved and the weight of cost of state government be lightened in every possible way."

"My experience in business and in legislative matters and my acquaintance with official business I feel qualify me to fill the office properly."

"I believe I understand the high calling of the Democratic party and official duty and in offering myself as a candidate for Secretary of State I do so in confident belief that in that office I will be able to contribute to the gratifying results which the citizens of Missouri have a right to expect upon the return of the Democratic party to power."

Senator Brown served as chairman of the railroad and internal improvement committee of the state senate and was a member of the committees on agriculture, banks and banking and other committees of the senate.

HOOVER WINS IN FIRST TILT

COMMITTEE SEATS HIS DELE-GATES FROM FLORIDA.

AFFECTS ONLY FOUR

Hearings on Other Contests Continue as Preliminary to Republican Convention.

Kansas City, Mo., June 4.—The first delegate contest of the Republican national convention today was decided in favor of a delegation pledged to vote for Herbert Hoover in the party's national convention.

That result came when the national committee, considering the 'claims of two rival delegations from Florida, decided in favor of a delegation headed by W. R. O'Neil of Orlando.

The decision affected only four delegates at large and their alternates. Decision on the district delegates will be decided later.

The national committee voted 47 to 36 in favor of the Hoover delegates. The defeated delegation was headed by George W. Bean, Clearwater, Fla. Significance Cleared.

The contest grew out of two state conventions held at Daytona Beach, Fla., last May, when one group bolted the original state convention.

At 2 p. m. the national committee reconvened to consider seating the district delegates.

Hoover supporters asserted that the decision on the Florida contest was significant as it might indicate the sentiment of the national committee in determining the results of the other state contests.

The defeated delegation has the right of appeal from the contest committee findings. The credentials committee will hear such appeals. If still dissatisfied, the contesting delegation may carry its fight to the floor of the convention.

The first official business of the convention got underway with the hearing. Eight states and Porto Rico have contests. The states are Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Kentucky, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas and Mississippi.

Before the Florida contest was taken up, the national committee admitted to membership five new members.

Credentials of delegates in states which have no contests were certified and a resolution adopted by the committee stated that all hearings shall be held in the open.

At the conclusion of each contest the committee will go into executive session to determine which set of delegates shall be seated.

Affect Hoover Strength.

In reading the list of states having contests Chairman William M. Butler indicated the District of Columbia. He said he understood there was a contest there, although none had previously been reported.

The contests may have an important bearing on the Hoover strength on the early ballots, since in nearly every instance, the battle for seats is to be fought between Hoover and anti-Hoover forces.

Lowden Manager in Kansas City Today

Clarence F. Buck Predicts Illinois Farmer Will Be Nominated on Fourth Ballot.

Kansas City, Mo., June 4.—With the prediction Frank O. Lowden of Illinois will win the presidential nomination on the fourth ballot, Clarence F. Buck, campaign manager for Lowden, arrived in Kansas City today and took charge of the pre-convention campaign of the Illinois candidate.

Lowden has 360 votes, he declared, and the invisible strength in the unstructured one-third of the delegates will be sufficient to swing the nomination to the dirt farmer from Illinois, said Buck.

"Lowden will not accept the nomination," Buck declared, "unless there is included in the party platform a special plank calling for farm equalization and relief. And this plank must conform to Lowden's view on the subject."

He said the agricultural question is one of the main issues in the Lowden campaign.

Meredith's Condition "Extremely Critical"

Des Moines, Ia., June 4.—The condition of Edwin T. Meredith, former secretary of agriculture, today was reported as "extremely critical." Meredith has been in poor health for some time and last week his case became serious. He is suffering from high blood pressure.

Australia Anxiously Awaits Plane's Coming

Elaborate Preparations Made to Greet Southern Cross.—American Back-ers Praised.

Sydney, Australia, June 4.—With the monoplane Southern Cross more than half way across the Pacific ocean from the United States, indications today were that Australians would not sleep much until it arrives.

Already elaborate preparations have been made to greet the Australian war ace who is at the helm of the trimotored Fokker monoplane.

Bert Hinkler, famous Australian aviator, has made arrangements to fly off the coast of Australia to greet the transatlantic fliers.

"I praise and congratulate the American backer of the Kingsford-Smith expedition," Hinkler said in an interview. "If only we had such patriotic backers in Australia it would certainly be fine."

Fliers Are Preparing to Renew Flight for London as Weather Reported Good.

St. Johns, N. F., June 4.—After a fast flight from Halifax, the seaplane Friendship landed at Trepassey Bay at noon, E. S. T., today with Miss Amelia Earhart, Wilmer Stultz and Lou Gordon ready to continue to London.

The plane Friendship was expected to reach Trepassey Bay around 1 p. m. E. S. T.

The fliers were prepared to leave Trepassey Bay as soon as possible today, because they had received reports that Atlantic weather conditions were excellent.

On Trans-Atlantic Flight.

Halifax, N. S., June 4.—Miss Amelia Earhart of Boston, Wilmer Stultz and Lou Gordon took off at 8.30 a. m. E. S. T., today for Trepassey Bay, Newfoundland, to start their trans-Atlantic flight to England. Weather conditions were excellent.

Miss Earhart, Stultz, at times pilot for Charles A. Levine and once pilot for Mrs. Francis Grayson, and Gordon flew here yesterday from Boston in a big Fokker airplane they had purchased from Commander Richard E. Byrd. The plane is one Byrd had intended using on his south polar expedition this fall.

Today in the Air

By United Press.

Captain Charles Kingsford-Smith and his three companions in the Southern Cross were speeding across the Pacific from Hawaii to Suva, Fiji Islands, making 90 knots an hour. They are due to arrive at 8 p. m. After a stop at Suva they will go to Australia.

Miss Amelia Earhart, Boston social worker, and Wilmer Stultz held the trimotored Fokker monoplane Friendship in readiness for a flight from Halifax to London, with the start scheduled for this afternoon. They were forced down by fog after flying from Boston.

The ice-cutting ship Bragenza was forcing its way to the north coast of Spitzbergen in the hope of reaching Reindeer Land and taking up the search for General Umberto Nobile and the missing dirigible Italia. An SOS picked up in Russia, said the Italian was in Franz Josef Land. Lieut. Luetzow Holm, Norwegian flier, prepared to start a search from Kings Bay in his naval seaplane.

Capt. Narva and Major Rignot, who attempted to set a long-distance flight record from Le Bourget Field, Paris, were forced down at Constantinople. India was their destination.

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh flew for an unknown destination after landing at El Paso, Tex., from San Diego, Cal. Capt. Cesare Sabelli flew his Bellanca seaplane from New York to Hartford, Conn., for final adjustments before starting a flight from New York to Rome.

Noel Wien and R. S. Merrill, with their two planes which carried three cameramen each, were lost somewhere near Point Barrow, Alaska after starting on a photographic expedition. No word was received from Matt Niemien who went to their aid in another plane.

Installation of 22 observation points between the Pacific and the Sierra Nevada mountains to provide weather data for fliers was announced by the Cuggenheim fund for the promotion of aeronautics.

ON TOWARD FIJI GOAL

AUSTRALIAN FLIERS ONLY ABOUT FIVE HOURS FROM ISLANDS.

BUCKING BAD WEATHER

2,600 Miles From Honolulu, Southern Cross Battles Rain and Clouds.—
In Touch by Radio.

Honolulu, June 4.—The transpacific plane Southern Cross was bucking head winds at 9.30 a. m. Honolulu time (12 noon pacific coast standard time) today.

The winds delayed somewhat the progress of the plane, which for hours had maintained a speed of approximately 100 miles an hour on its flight from Hawaii to Suva, in the Fiji Islands.

The plane at that hour was attempting to obtain compass bearings from ships so that it could give the distance yet to be traveled to reach Suva.

500 Miles Yet to Go.

It was believed the Southern Cross was between 2,500 and 2,600 miles out from the Hawaiian Islands, leaving about 500 miles yet to go to reach Suva.

The last time the plane checked its position with ships was at 6.20 a. m. when it reported "eight hundred miles to go. We are running into bad weather again."

The distance from Barking Sands Island of Kauai, where the Southern Cross took off at 5.20 a. m. yesterday, to Suva in the Fiji Islands is 3,138 miles.

At 6.50 a. m. the navy radio station here picked up a message saying that the Southern Cross was continuing the speed of approximately 100 miles an hour toward Suva.

"Hello, Samoa," the message. "Are you getting us alright? Everything okay?"

Dodging Rain Clouds.

"How do you get us?" said a message to the navy radio station Tutuila picked up here by the Radio Corporation of America at 6.45 a. m.

"We are experiencing poor flying weather now. We are dodging rain clouds. The weather has been very changeable the past few hours."

At 7.02 a. m. another message said: "We are just hitting the gray dawn of early morning. The storm clouds are thicker now. Kingsford-Smith is maneuvering to climb above them. We are confident we can ride through the storm safely. It is rough riding, though."

Twelve minutes later the Radio Corporation of America here again picked up a radio to the navy radio station at Tutuila.

"We have climbed to an altitude of 8,500 feet to get above the clouds," it said. "The clouds are everywhere under us now."

Like an Elevator.

After reaching an altitude of 8,500 feet and passing over what was believed to be the worst of the storm area, the Southern Cross began rapidly descending to the level it had previously held.

"We are descending 2,000 feet," a message picked up by the Radio Corporation of America said at 7.30 a. m.

Five minutes later the plane reported it was still maneuvering around to avoid clouds.

"The clouds are looking worse again," a message timed 7.30 said. "The Southern Cross is like an elevator going up and down. We are now dropping near the surface. We have already come down from 8,500 to 3,000 feet."

A later message said the plane had reached an altitude of 800 feet and that a stiff breeze was blowing.

Over Island Group

Shortly after 2 p. m. the Southern Cross was over the Phoenix group of Islands, mere dots in the wide expanse of the southern Pacific.

The tiny islands were the first land the plane had been near since the departure from the Hawaiian group.

Radio messages told of passing Canton Island, in the Phoenix group. Short-

THE FILIBUSTER SIDE SHOW.

A filibuster is an entertaining or a depressing spectacle according to one's point of view. To some of the crowds in the Senate gallery and others in the long lines outside waiting a chance to get in, the closing hours of the last congressional session were apparently entertaining. They cheered and yelled as at an athletic contest. To thoughtful citizens, aware of the importance of the Boulder Dam project, interested in having it worked out and settled with fairness and sound engineering, the spectacle was anything but amusing.

Part of the time, only three Senators were in the chamber. One read a newspaper, one studied a map on the wall, and the third dozed on and on with his filibustering. Senator Blease, when his turn came read page after page from the life and works of the president of the southern confederacy, Jefferson Davis—no doubt worth reading in one's home, but hardly to the point in the Senate.

All of this is a familiar spectacle at the close of almost every congressional session. The sixty-ninth Congress ended in a filibuster on the subject of the life of the slush-fund committee. The session before that had its own Boulder Dam filibuster.

Some day the filibuster may be relegated to the junk heap along with other antiquated and destructive customs. When or how this may be accomplished is at present one of the great mysteries.

THE BAUMES IDEA.

The Cleveland Safety Director is urging that the Ohio legislature pass laws similar to the Baumes laws now working rather successfully in New York. These laws were put into effect two years ago. They provide heavy sentences for habitual criminals. The first offender gets off lightly. If he comes up the second time he gets a heavy sentence. After three offenses, the man is considered a habitual offender, and for the fourth conviction he gets life imprisonment.

Members of the New York police department say these laws have done much to stamp out serious crime in New York. Some of these laws expedite court procedure, which is another valuable factor in cutting down crime. The law's delay and needless technicality are among the most potent forces in favor of the criminal.

Complaint has been made that they are unduly severe. If this is so, the next state which puts the principle into application may modify the form of the laws enough to make them effective without cruelty.

When it comes to protecting from cruelty, however, it seems about time that state legislatures take cruelty to innocent victims of crime somewhat into account.

Senator Reed gave Al Smith a good run in West Virginia and came near carrying the state.

Nothing venture, nothing gain. A lot of men are failures because they never try anything.

With all their other charms so generously displayed, the ladies are still stingy with their ears.

There's still another month before vacation season opens. Don't get restless. It only takes the average man two months to spend all he has made the other ten.

If Senator Healin can get pay for his speeches over the country, that is his business but he ought not take up the time of the senate in rehearsing them at government expense.

There are said to be 16,000 ways of making a living and a lot of people put in so much time trying to decide just which way they like best that they never get around to making the living.

Is the Family Defunct?

with the situations of life and a corresponding scorn for customary patterns of behavior.

The sense of independence is developing in the first place, because the play group is increasing its influence at the expense of the family. A quiet evening in the family circle talking, reading, or playing games is a rare exception in modern American life.

Parents as well as children find their amusement elsewhere after the evening meal. And in the daytime, since the help of boys and girls is no longer required about the house, they go off to play with their fellows, usually for lack of other space, to a public park or playground.

Not only is the family losing much of its former power to the play group, but it is exercising what it has left less in accordance with traditional patterns.—The Forum Magazine.

The Campaign Log

June 4.—By United Press.

Lee Merriwether of the Senator Reed forces said that Governor Alfred E. Smith's present strength was only 483 delegates and that he would not be able to get the nomination. Smith leaders questioned Merriwether's diagnosis in several states.

Matthew Q. Glasper and Joseph Steinberg, managers of the Curtis campaign, predicted that the Senator from Kansas would receive the Republican presidential nomination on the eighth or ninth ballot.

F. Scott McBride, general superintendent of the anti-saloon league in an address in Washington warned the Democratic party that nomination of a wet candidate would mean defeat and "deposition of the party leaders."

The Republican national committee in Kansas City will decide today 73 contests representing southern states and Porto Rico.

TURNING TO NON-FICTION BOOKS, SAYS AUTHORITY.

The public taste in reading is setting more and more strongly towards books of general interest and away from fiction according to Frank Parker Stockbridge, life member of the American Library Association, writing in the June "Bookman". Fiction today, Mr. Stockbridge finds from library reports, occupies second place among library readers.

Raising $25,000 to Oppose Wet Candidate

Anti-Saloon League Has Only $2,922 So Far. Most of That to Attack Smith.

Washington, June 4.—The anti-saloon league is raising a $25,000 fund to oppose nomination of any wet presidential candidate, Edward B. Dunford, counsel for the league, told the Senate campaign committee today.

Only $2,922 has been raised so far, and about $2,900 expended, Dunford said.

Most of this was spent to send out a pamphlet attacking the record of Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York, he added.

CITY AWAITS
NEW DICTATORCHANG LEAVES PEKING TO SOUTHERN CHINESE ARMIES.

PEACE TO BE SOUGHT

People's Government to Be Asked by Northern Residents—Attempt
Made to Kill Chang.

Peking, China, June 4.—This Northern capital today calmly awaited new developments of the Chinese civil situation—probably the peaceful occupancy of the city by Southern Nationalist troops.

There have been few demonstrations since Chang Tso Lin, dictator of affairs for the past five years, rode smilingly through the streets in an armored car yesterday and started his retreat back to Manchuria. He had left an interim government in charge and had made arrangements for gun-damages to maintain order.

Today there was quiet, although it was a quiet mixed with uneasiness as to what the next steps might be.

Try to Make Peace.

Generals Chang Hsue Hsiang and Yang Yu Ting, remaining of the Northern forces that Chang Tso-Lin controlled, have decided to maintain their armies at a point thirty miles south of Peking. This, it is understood, is an effort to create peace between the onward driving Nationalist armies and the Northern people.

It was believed these generals would attempt to convey to the Nationalist leaders the demands of the Northern residents that a people's government be formed.

Attempt on Chang's Life.

Mukden, China, June 4.—Manchurian soldiers were concentrated within the walled city today after an attempt had been made on the life of Chang Tso Lin, retiring dictator of the North China government, by bombing his special train.

Chang and several of his aides were injured. Several guards were killed. The injury to the Manchurian war lord was said not to be serious, although he was injured in the forehead.

Two Nationalist spies were shot and killed by Japanese soldiers, who helped in restoring order to the panic stricken city.

Dynamiting of the train carrying the Manchurian war lord—a special train chartered to bring Chang in retreat from Peking—occurred at 5:30 a. m. today in one of the suburbs of the city near the Lao to Kai railroad bridge, at the junction of the Southern Manchurian and the Peking-Mukden Railroads.

A bomb exploded as the train approached. There were fifteen cars on the train and three, were wrecked by the bomb, including the car on which Chang and his advisers rode.

Several guards, riding on the train to protect Chang, were killed.

Japan Not Disturbed.

Tokio, June 4.—Official circles today did not believe the assassination attempt against Chang Tso Lin at Mukden could be considered an over-serious incident, the United Press was advised.

The assassination attempt was within Japanese territory—along the railroad—but the war minister refused to discuss whether Japan could be held responsible.

Prime Minister Dies.

Tokio, June 4.—Pan Fu, prime minister of Northern China, died of injuries he received in the bombing at Mukden of the special train of Chang Tso Lin, retiring from Peking. It was reported today on usually reliable authority.

30 Reported Killed.

London, June 4.—Thirty persons in civilian dress, alleged to be southern Nationalist soldiers, were killed when machine gunners started firing immediately after Chang Tso Lin's train had been wrecked at Mukden, Tokio advises to the exchange telegraph said today.

Direct dispatches to the United Press from Mukden said that machine gunners had started shooting at random after the bomb explosion but were quieted after a few skirmishes with Japanese railroad guards. There were no indications of casualties in those clashes.

Bishop Is Shot by Minister Asking Aid

Clergyman Later Commits Suicide.—
Check for $50 in Hand of Church
Officer.

Charleston, S. C., June 4.—Bishop William A. Guerry, of the Episcopal Church, South, was shot and seriously wounded during an argument in the diocese office with the Rev. James A. Woodward here today.

Woodward committed suicide a short time later.

Bishop Guerry was unconscious at a hospital here and details of the incident could not be obtained.

The shooting culminated an argument between the two men, according to Miss Henrietta Jervey, secretary of Bishop Guerry.

Woodward, a retired clergyman, had come to the bishop for financial aid, apparently. Grieved in Guerry's hand when he was found unconscious on the floor was a $50 check made out to Woodward.

Lusitania Claims
Now Being Settled

Most of $2,500,000 Damages Awarded
Have Been Paid—None From Germany Eventually.

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

Washington—More than 13 years ago the German embassy here advertised in the newspapers a warning to Americans against sailing through the war zone on British ships.

That was the beginning of the story of the Lusitania, which was torpedoed six days later near Ireland with loss of 124 Americans, whose deaths proved the greatest single factor in pushing us into war with Germany.

The incident is now being closed. It was within a week or two of May 7, the thirtieth anniversary of the Lusitania catastrophe, that the heirs and survivors of the American victims began to receive the $2,500,000 damages awarded them by the Mixed Claims Commission against Germany.

Most of the money has been paid and the rest will be doled out as fast as the remaining successful claimants file their applications with the treasury under provision of the War Claims Act. The act provided for immediate payment of all death and personal injury claims and all claims under $100,000. The other claims are being paid by installments. The money will really come from Germany, but as it is being collected over a 75-year period under the Dawes plan, Congress decided to take care of the American claimants while some of them remained alive.

Scaled Far Down.

The Mixed Claims Commission, under the umpireship of Judge Edwin E. Parker of Texas, started out with nearly 12,500 claims for an aggregate of nearly $1,500,000,000. It scaled them down to awards of about $200,000,000. With one American and one German member, plus Parker, it handled both American claims and those of Germany for war-seized property of her nationals.

Four millions were awarded for 384 American death and personal injury claims, the greater part of this involving the Lusitania fatalities.

These Lusitania awards were made strictly on the basis of what the death of a passenger meant in financial loss to the heir.

For the death of Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Hubbard the heirs received $57,500—$25,000 to Elbert Hubbard II, $7,500 to Katherine Hubbard, and $25,000 to Miriam Hubbard. Elbert and Katherine were children by Hubbard's first marriage; Miriam by his second. Elbert and Miriam were heirs to Hubbard's $400,000 estate. Two sons of the first marriage, Ralph and Sanford, were awarded nothing by the commission because their father had not contributed to their support for a long time before his death.

Vanderbilt Claim Denied.

The estate of Alfred G. Vanderbilt entered a $250,000 claim and was not allowed anything. Vanderbilt had spent nearly $300,000 a year on himself and family, but he had left $15,000,000 to his widow and two children and it was shown that he had not been adding to his estate. Hence the decision that his death was no financial loss to the heirs.

Aged sisters of Charles Frohman, the unmarried theatrical producer said to have died with the assertion that death was life's most beautiful adventure, filed a claim which was also denied on similar principle. The commission felt no relief was needed, as Frohman's movie stockholdings had increased in value.

The two sons of Charles Klein, another producer who went down, are receiving $50,000. They were born in America and Klein had filed papers for American citizenship before his death. Mrs. Klein got nothing, as she was a British subject, and still is.

Dog Teams Start Over Ice-Bound Territory in Search of Italia's Crew.

Kings Bay, Spitzbergen, June 4.—The search for General Umberto Nobile and his crew of the polar dirigible Italia widened today with arrival of new rescue parties in the northern regions where the Italia is believed to have landed.

Dog teams struck out over the frozen, ice-bound territory, guided by expert guides, and will go inland in hopes of rescuing the Italian explorer and his aides who have been missing for ten days. They have hopes of finding the crew alive—possibly beaming back through the trailless land towards Kings Bay.

The whaler Braganza, chartered by the Italian government, is proceeding north and advised the base here that she had passed Amsterdam Island shortly after midnight.

The vessel reported she was heading eastward from the island but that ice was becoming more dense. Ice thus far has not blocked the vessel.

Serious, Solid and Silent
--That's G. O. P. Chairman

Butler, Pal of Coolidge, Has Kept
Party Free of Scandals
Since 1924.

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

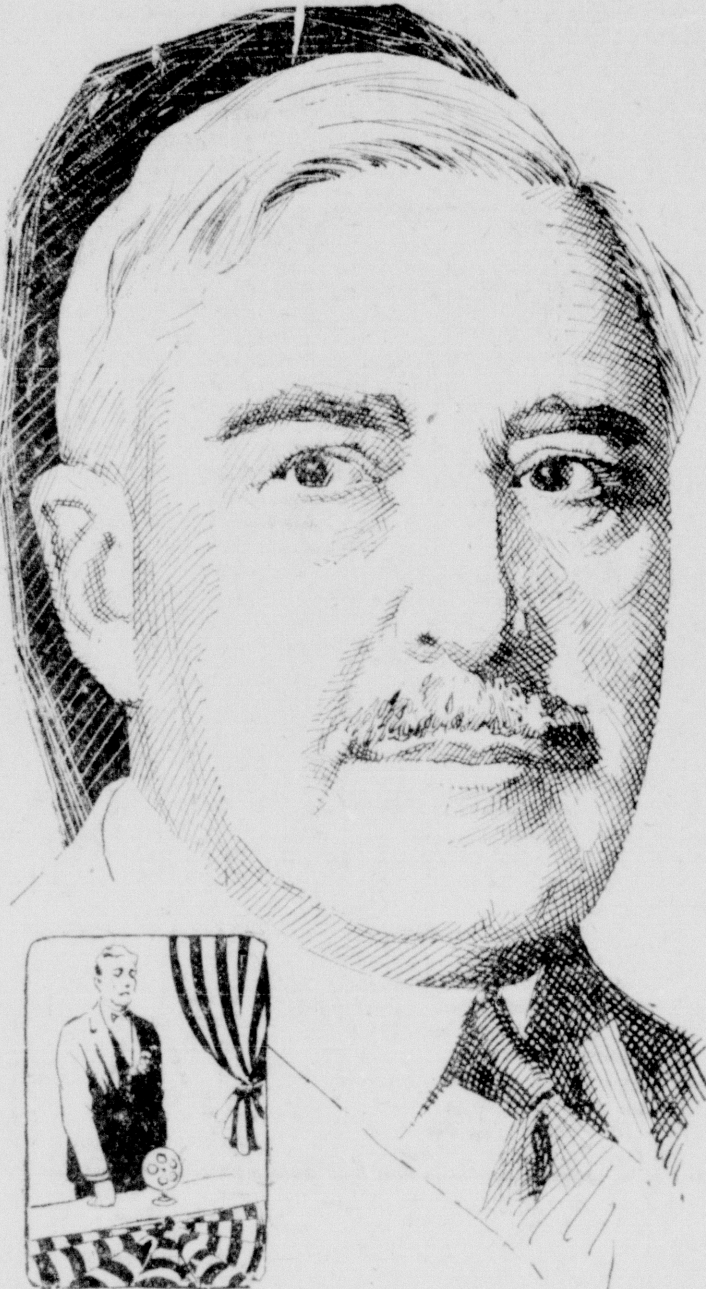

Washington, June 4.—Serious, solid and silent, William M. Butler of Massachusetts was four years ago placed in charge of the Republican party by his friend Calvin Coolidge. Now he is about to quit the chairmanship of the national committee still serious, solid and silent.

In the four years of his reign, Butler has justified the Coolidge faith by giving the party everything it demands of a national chairman:

1. He has avoided scandals.
2. He leaves no deficit behind him.

Aside from politics, Butler's main interests are the textile and utility corporations which he heads—along with the innumerable ones of which he is a director—and his private yacht. Born and raised in the famous old whaling city of New Bedford, he has always been a good sailor. Once he told Coolidge the yacht Mayflower appealed to him as a hotel parlor would for a home.

Butler is a short, almost pudgy man, 67 years old, with iron gray hair and close-cropped mustache. He wears clothes indicative of the industrial captain. He sits with hands clasped on his bay window, appearing placid and probably content, though far from merry. He can make a business-like five-

William M. Butler, retiring chairman of Republican National Committee.

3. He has been indisputably boss of the committee.

That record is a key to Butler's personality. More than anything else, Butler is safe, sane and conservative. Smart presidents pick national chairmen who will run the party organization as they want it run. And Butler has done the job as Coolidge would have done it himself.

Butler's biography shows that he was first a corporation employee, then a corporation lawyer, then a corporation organizer and finally a corporation owner. Naturally, he operated the Republican party as if it were just one more corporation.

Not a Popular Man.

Butler has been far from the most popular national chairman the party has had. He's no backslapper like his predecessor, Will Hays, and his refusal to be a dummy for Harry Sinclair's oil gifts indicates that he is more scrupulous. It has been said that, compared with Butler, Coolidge is garrulous. Although he is supposed to be one of the president's two closest friends, they call each other "Mr. Butler" and "Mr. Coolidge."

minute speech but is a stranger to oratory. He believes, of course, that the nation's welfare and prosperity depend on the Republican party.

Butler always believed a straight answer was the best policy. When Coolidge made him his pre-convention manager in 1924, party politicians began to find this out.

Bossed 1924 Meet.

When the 1924 convention assembled, Butler, acting for Coolidge, was boss. He ran things to suit himself and some of the Old Guard senators thought he was cold-blooded about it. After the vice presidency had been tossed about and several times refused, they took the reins and began to work for Dawes. Butler stepped down from the platform and said to a Dawes senator: "It's to be Hoover!"

"No it isn't," the Senator yelled back. "It's to be Dawes on the next ballot." And so it was, but Butler promptly regained the reins and submerged the undercurrent of criticism from the Old Guard. He won his "Keep Cool With Coolidge" campaign without the hoorah of Hays and without spending money like water, as Hays had in 1920. According to best available estimates, he spent about half as much. Of his $3,000,000 campaign fund a third was given to the state organizations.

With his own money, he's liberal," says one who knows him well, "but with campaign money he's unquestionably the most hard-boiled chairman they ever had. When Butler was appointed to the Senate to succeed Henry Cabot Lodge, he was looked on as a successor to Hanna, Quay, Penrose and Crane. He was boss of his party organization and represented the president in Congress. But his path along the royal road to power was blocked by David L. Walsh, Democrat, who defeated him in the next Massachusetts senatorial election. He may run again this year.

Picked Kansas City.

Butler's last outstanding demonstration of leadership and control came early this year when he forced the convention to go to Kansas City. He considered it good strategy to meet in the heart of the agricultural belt, but he also held the convention should be attended by delegates rather than proxies. He knew a San Francisco convention meant nearly three weeks' loss of time to delegates and much more expense to most.

Butler, the son of a New Bedford clergyman, started life as a shoe factory clerk. After studying at Boston University Law School on self-earned money, he entered practice in New Bedford and was elected to the Massachusetts legislature in 1890. In Boston he finally became a protégé of Murray Crane. Crane put him in touch with valuable business connections and Butler became a corporation lawyer. He acquired interests in various concerns, notably textile mills. Crane, noted for his own silence and his liking for silent men, put Butler and Coolidge together. Butler continued his political interest—especially in Coolidge.

It's interesting to observe that when Coolidge entered the White House he kept his three best friends and advisers—Stearns the merchant, Morrow the banker and Butler the corporation lawyer and manufacturer.

State Road System
Cuts Auto Expense

Highway Improvement, It Is Estimated,
Saved People of Missouri $32,- 700,000 in 1927.

Jefferson City, Mo., June 4.—Missouri's highway system, although only half completed, saved automobile owners more than $32,700,000 last year through reduced cost of operation, according to statistics released here by T. H. Cutler, chief highway engineer.

Then it is evident, Cutler said, that the remaining fifty per cent of unfinished highways cost automobile owners a like amount. In the past several years the car-mileage cost of operating an automobile has increased in direct proportion to the mileage of improved highways constructed, Cutler said.

Last year there were 642,419 automobiles registered in Missouri. This year it is estimated that the total will reach 732,000 and by 1936 the number will be at least 1,030,000, he said.

In 1927 the average car consumed 472 gallons of gasoline during the year. At fourteen miles to the gallon, the average car traveled 6,600 miles during the year, a total of 4,503,400 car-miles for the 642,419 cars.

on the pay-as-you-go plan, the present state road system of 7,640 miles would be completed by 1927, and the excess cost of operation of motor vehicles over the unimproved sections in the meantime would amount to many times the cost of immediate construction of the remainder of the entire system, Cutler said.

Each mile of completed road in the state reduces the average cost of operation of motor vehicles and the more rapidly will the cost of vehicles operation be reduced to a minimum.

There are two phases to the justification for building roads; the social and the economic. The social exceeds the economic, but it cannot easily be measured in dollars and cents, as can the economic.

Before the ceremony Miss Ruth Lawrence sang "Believe Me, If All Those Endearing Young Charms," by Moore-Stevenson, and "At Dawning," by Eberhart-Cadman. Following the ceremony she sang "I Love You Truly," by Carrie Jacobs-Bond. She was accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Richards.

Marjorie Gray, niece of the bride and Beverly Gex, niece of the bridegroom, were the ring bearers. Dressed in pink and blue they carried the rings in calla lilies.

Varied Interests of Women Discussed at Texas Convention

By MADELAINE WILSON

San Antonio, Tex., June 4.—Varied interests of modern women have been demonstrated in the convention program of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, which has just brought to a close the first of two weeks' activities.

"The fine art of living," the convention keynote, has been stressed in the daily business sessions and evenings of entertainment. Well-known poets, musicians and artists in the federation have appeared. Gutson Gorgium, noted sculptor, who spoke on "The Living Art," and Dr. Geo. K. Burgess, director of the bureau of standards, department of commerce, were the outstanding speakers.

The American home, which has been a sort of pet during the administration of Mrs. John Dickinson Sherman, Estes Park, Colo., was characterized in many talks as the inevitable and fixed center of all life. Along this line the president urged that the federation recognize the importance of the radio and make it their responsibility to see that radio programs were beneficial.

Charges of commercialization brought against the federation in regard to its exhaustive home equipment survey just completed, were most emphatically denied by Mrs. Sherman.

Support of the children's bureau: Promotion of the welfare and hygiene of infancy and maternity; creation of a federal department of education; support of the 18th Amendment and continued pressure for adequate government recognition of the American home maker have been urged by the federation.

The speech given at the law observance department dinner by Mrs. Jesse W. Nicholson of Maryland, started the ball of discussion of prohibition and "wet" candidates. In part she said, "trust no man labeled wet. The time has come for women to cast the deciding vote between lawlessness and civilization."

In hotel lobbies and on the streets the talk of "down with the 'wet' candidates, party or no party," is heard among club women.

With election of the federation president but three days off, the race between Mrs. John F. Sippel of Baltimore, Md., and Mrs. Edward Franklin White, of Indianapolis, Ind., is being waged bitterly.

Possibilities of a dark horse to be nominated from the convention floor continue uncertain. Mrs. Gace Morrison Poole, Brockton, Mass., candidate for first vice-president, and Mrs. J. U. Fields, of Haskell, Tex., deposed chairman of the biennial convention, have been mentioned as likely candidates. However, each woman has emphatically denied she will run.

The "religion and daily life service" program to be given this afternoon has been arranged by the fine arts department. Alice Ames Winter of Minneapolis, well-known magazine writer, and a past president of the federation, was to give an address, "The Abiding Presence."

LINDY AFRAID THAT HE WILL HIT SOMEONE

Flier Is Not Greatly Concerned Over Accusation That He Has "Swelled Head."

El Paso, Tex., June 4.—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh took off from El Paso in his Ryan monoplane today for an unnamed Eastern point.

The transatlantic flier flew here yesterday from California, refueled his plane and after a short flight was forced to return to El Paso to spend the night when he was caught in a sand storm.

Lindbergh did not appear greatly concerned over the printed accusation of Geze Howe, Amarillo, Tex., editor, that he had a "swelled head" as a result of his popularity after his ocean flight.

"If I have left the impression that I've been irritated when crowds gathered at the landing fields, it is because I am afraid some one will get hurt," he said. "Frequently I've had trouble landing because I was afraid my propeller would hit someone."

"As a matter of fact, I'm glad to see crowds at the fields for the more persons go out the more rapidly aviation will become popular."

SCHOLARSHIP TO MISS CARY

MARYVILLE GIRL WINS $1,000
AWARD AT ST. LOUIS.

GRADUATED AS NURSE

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Cary
Will Receive Further Training in Columbia University.

Miss Alice Berte Cary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Cary of Maryville, has won a scholarship offered by the Jewish hospital of St. Louis, which is valued at $1,000.

The scholarship was presented to her Thursday night at the commencement program of the Jewish hospital when she was announced as having the highest standing among fifteen nurses who were graduated after a three years course in the Jewish hospital.

Miss Cary is a graduate of the Maryville high school and she attended the State Teachers College here. She taught in Nodaway county, having been the instructor of Highland school before starting her training for a nurse.

The $1,000 scholarship she won will enable her to attend school at the Teachers College at Columbia University, New York, for a year, where she may take up special work. Miss Cary has a year before she may take advantage of the scholarship. Her training at the Jewish hospital will not be completed until September.

Miss Cary has been an outstanding student at the Jewish hospital since she enrolled. Each year a $50 gold award is made to the nurse standing highest in scholarship in each class and Miss Cary won this award the first two years she was enrolled.

Mr. and Mrs. Cary were in St. Louis to attend their daughter's graduation. Miss Margaret Davison, county health nurse, who is a graduate of the hospital, Mrs. Roy Kelley, Miss Vada Ciser, Mrs. Rex Kidder and Mrs. Marilyn, also attended the exercises.

Mrs. Frank Barmann Winner on Flowers

Mistake Made in List of Awards Due to Confusion With Name of Mrs. A. K. Frank.

Mrs. Frank Barmann of Maryville had some flowers in the annual D. A. R. flower show last week. So did her daughter-in-law, Mrs. F. L. Barmann. When the entries were listed, the name of Mrs. F. L. Barmann was called. Then "Mrs. Frank"—meaning, of course, Mrs. Frank Barmann. But it went down on the sheet merely as Mrs. Frank.

That was the explanation today for a mistake in the list of awards by which credit for three prizes went to Mrs. A. K. Frank instead of to Mrs. Barmann. Mrs. Frank had no flowers entered.

Mrs. Barmann won the first place ribbon for the best display of oriental poppies, and second place for display of sweet william and display in the novelty class.

SKIDMORE TO AID OF A BOY

CASE THERE OF "WHEN A FELLER FINDS A FRIEND."

IS IN HOSPITAL HERE

Town Holds Two Benefits for Boy
Scout and He Takes Exams
In Bed.

Mr. Briggs, who draws the cartoon, "When a feller needs a friend—," might find what he's looking for at Skidmore.

Roland S. Bodie, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Bodie of that town, seems to have been having rather a "tough" time. He has been in the St. Francis Hospital here for more than three weeks, following a serious appendicitis operation. But he has some friends in and around Skidmore who are real.

About a week ago the women of the community sponsored a "kitchen window" benefit, which was held in the legion hall at Skidmore. The response and interest shown were excellent and $21 was cleared, all of which was given to Roland. To this amount the boy scouts of the town added $6.

Tuesday, the Rev. E. K. Christie exhibited pictures of Skidmore residents of all ages, which were taken several years ago. The Reverend Mr. Christie made a nominal charge for his "show" and turned most of the proceeds over to Roland. The use of the movie hall in Skidmore was donated by John McMahon, and Mr. Christie was backed by several of the business men of the town. About $23 was realized from this source.

J. R. Bodie, a younger brother of Roland, had had an appendicitis operation several months ago. Roland is about 13 years old and finished the eighth grade this year. When final examinations were given, he was unable to go to school because of illness, so his examinations were given to him at his home. He passed with good grades.

Roland is a Boy Scout, and is excellently thought of in Skidmore. It is understood that he is getting along at the hospital as well as can be expected.

About nine months ago a similar project of helpfulness was undertaken by Skidmore residents for Thornburn Hawk, son of the Rev. and Mrs. J. V. Hawk. Young Hawk had a serious case of rheumatism, and it was necessary to operate on his hips, one at a time. He has been in a hospital at Kirksville, Mo., nine months, and is improving, though slowly.

Henry Pistole, 72, Dies in St. Joseph Hospital

Pneumonia Fatal to Old Resident of Hopkins.—Survived by Eight Children.

Henry Pistole, 72 years old and a veteran resident of the Hopkins vicinity, died at the Missouri Methodist hospital in St. Joseph this morning shortly after 2 o'clock.

Mr. Pistole had been in fairly good health until about four weeks ago, when he was taken to the hospital for a minor operation. Two weeks later he underwent a major operation and a few days after that pneumonia developed, which was the immediate cause of his death.

He had lived near Hopkins practically all of his life. At the time of his death he had been making his home with a daughter just at the edge of Hopkins.

Mr. Pistole is survived by eight children: Olin, Ava and Glen, of Hopkins; Wallace, of Near Lincoln, Kan.; Mrs. Ed Moellenbrandt of Blockton, Ia.; Miss Velma of Kansas City, and Miss Annie of Hopkins. He is also survived by two brothers, Charles Pistole, near Pickering, and Stephen Pistole of Kansas City, Kan., and a large number of grandchildren.

Mr. Pistole was a member of the Masonic Blue Lodge at Hopkins and also was a Scottish Rite Mason. He was a member of the Christian Church at Hopkins.

The body was brought to Hopkins at noon today. Although definite funeral arrangements have not been made, it was announced that burial would be in the White Oak cemetery, northeast of Pickering.

Degree Tomorrow to Leo J. Halasey

St. Louis, Mo., June 4.—Leo J. Halasey of Maryville, Mo., will receive his degree in Law at the 119th annual commencement exercises of St. Louis University, to be held tomorrow in the new University gymnasium.

Few men are better known in the Law School than Halasey, who was one of the chief conspirators in the famous Casey-Halasey murder trial, a mock tragedy that was enacted in the Law School and tried by the senior students under the auspices of the dean and faculty of the school. His superb acting on that occasion, as well as his studious application during his college years, indicate that he will be prominent in law circles before many years have passed.

Leo J. Halasey is a son of Mr. and Mrs. John Halasey, Maryville.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Bloomfield arrived in Maryville last night from Concord, N. C., to visit Mrs. Bloomfield's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Wallace.

Mud Interferes With Usual Sunday Rides

Several Persons Go Into or Near
Ditches—A Boon to Chain
Changers.

A tourist, coming to Maryville from the north yesterday, made the sad mistake of getting on a newly worked road, and he was from 11 a. m. until 4 p. m. coming a distance of twenty miles.

The mud on the main roads was not particularly deep, but it was quite slick and proved a hindrance to many persons' usual Sunday afternoon ride. H. O. Hickernell, of the State Teachers College faculty was among those who had the misfortune of getting stuck. His difficulty occurred on the high way between Bolekow and Barnard.

D. N. Hoshor, at the service station at the end of the pavement south of Maryville and an assistant were kept so busy putting on and taking off chains that at 3 p. m. neither of the men had had time to eat dinner.

NATION MADE BY THE SOUL

CAN'T SURVIVE WITHOUT THE ALTAR, DEWAR DECLARES.

FINDS BIBLE PARALLEL

American Founders Like Abraham,
Presbyterian Minister Says.—
"Vision Will Clear."

A nation is made great by the greatness of the human soul.

That was the conclusion reached in the sermon on "Our National Greatness," given by the Rev. W. N. Dewar at the First Presbyterian Church yesterday morning.

God instructed Abraham, "Get thee out of thy country, and from thy kindred, and from thy father's house, unto the land I will show thee: and I will make thee a great nation, and I will make thee and make thy name great."

The Reverend Mr. Dewar declared this prophecy to Abraham was a parallel to the founding of our own nation.

The pilgrims left their country, their homes, their father's house, and their kindred for a new land to which they were led by the providence of God, the minister pointed out.

"The characteristic of the founders of both nations were alike," he added. "Wherever they pitched their tent or their cabin, beside it they erected their altar, church or cathedral."

"In our territory we are a great nation," the Reverend Mr. Dewar said. "If we grow narrow minded and small souls and stunted bodies, it is not the fault of the land. It is vast enough for anything great and good and beautiful."

"In the matter of population we are indeed a great nation," the Reverend Mr. Dewar said after tracing territorial expansion. "Our land has many millions of more souls living in it than ever conceived in the prophecies of Webster or Joseph Cook."

"Verily we are a land flowing with milk and honey. A land of greatness in resources. In livestock, in machinery, in railroads, in banks, in everything of material nature we are tremendously wealthy."

But most important among the things that make a nation, the Reverend Mr. Dewar declared, are the home and the altar.

"Take away the altar and you leave the basic institution of life and government a prey to weakness and disorder and vice."

"The home, or the nation, or the government that tries to get along without the altar is doomed."

"Through thee and through thy seed shall all the families of the earth be blessed," was the promise God gave Abraham.

"God is saying that to America in these days as he has never done. We are yet destined to play a great and important part in the affairs of the world. We have everything that fits us for it, save perhaps the clarity of vision. But our vision will clear and we will see ourselves charged with a divine mission."

Four Poor Fishermen Teach World Lesson

Rev. R. A. Mitchell Questions Whether
Anyone Is Capable Now of Imitating
Them.

"Come, follow me."

But today, as of old, men make the same trifling excuses, they are too busy, and the claims of Christ must wait.

The Rev. R. A. Mitchell in his sermon last night at the M. E. Church, South, told the story of the four poor fishermen who, "left their faithful boats, their old fish nets, their father and mother, to follow the man who did not promise them money, or lands, but spoke only of love, poverty and perfection."

"Who among us today would be capable of imitating those poor fishermen of Capernaum?" the minister challenged. "If a prophet should speak thus to us, men of today, how many would follow him with the same simple-hearted faith of those poor fishermen of old?"

"It is related of Voltaire that on one occasion, in Paris, when a religious procession carrying a Crucifix passed him, he lifted his hat in recognition and reverence. A friend exclaimed to him, 'What are you reconciled with God?'"

Voltaire with fine irony replied, 'We salute, but we do not speak.'"

"That phrase was pointed out by the Reverend Mr. Mitchell as a true description of many a man's relationship with God."

The concluding part of the sermon related to Matthew, whom he described as the "black sheep," the outcast, the publican of his family. Matthew, he said, was determined to get rich the quickest way realizing it meant setting his face like a flint for a year or two against his conscience and patriotism. People ceased to like him and he was thrown among the outcasts.

One day Jesus was preaching to the people gathered on the shore of the lake near Capernaum. Matthew was on the main travelled road to collect custom dues. Jesus passed up that way and called to Matthew to follow him. Matthew arose and answered the call.

"The mysteries of conversion can never be accounted for," the Reverend Mr. Mitchell said. "I doubt if you will ever be able to explain yours. A calm, sweet peace; a warming of the heart; a sense of sin forgiven; that is all, and we are lost in wonder, love and grace."

Posses Seek Farmer Who Escaped Jail

Condition of Linn Creek Sheriff Is Critical After Attack by Willard
Brown, 21.

Linn Creek, Mo., June 4.—Posses of more than ten men scoured the countryside here last night for Willard Brown, 21, a farmer, who escaped from the county jail after attacking Sam Thaxton, sheriff of Camden county. The officer was beaten with a sash weight taken from a window in Brown's cell. His condition was reported critical.

J. F. Case Declares Farm Relief Issue

"Fury of Farmers Scorned May Be Devastating to Republicans," He Warns.

Wright City, Mo., June 4.—President John F. Case of the Missouri State Board of Agriculture issued a statement here last night warning that President Coolidge's veto of the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill "may be devastating to the Republican party."

"The matter will not down," he said. "It must be fought out on the convention floors at Kansas City and Houston, and the final message will be written in when the farmers vote next November."

"Hell hath no fury like a woman scorned," Shakespeare once said; the Republican party may find out that the fury of farmers scored is devastating. Sharply criticizing the President for vetoing the measure, Case said:

"He had a right to veto the bill, but criticism is due for the bitter and untemperate way he spoke in his veto message. He repeatedly intimated that the sincere and able men who fostered and fought for his measure are a group of morons. Either that or they tried to enact a 'vicious' law."

"How any person who has observed the workings of the tariff and understands that its primary object is to protect American industry can call a device intended to extend that protection to the nation's biggest industry 'unconstitutional,' is beyond us."

Case is a Republican.

OUT OUR WAY

THE SPANISH WAR

From the Scrapbook of O. H. Saylor, Hopkins.

THIS HAS HAPPENED
SALLY FORD, 16, ward of the state orphanage, is "famed out" to CLEM CARSON. She meets DAVID NASH, athlete and student, working on the Carson farm for the summer. When Carson makes remarks about their friendship, David hits him. They run away and join a carnival. David as cook's helper and Sally as "Princess Lalla," crystal gazer.

In Capital City, location of the orphanage, Sally is recognized when the orphans come trooping into the show tent, chaperoned by a beautiful "Lady Bountiful." The Barker diverts attention from her and she is saved. Sally learns from ARTHUR VAN HORNE, handsome easterly, that this "Lady Bountiful" is ENID BARR, wife of a wealthy New Yorker.

The carnival moves on to an adjoining state and Sally and David go about the streets without fear of detection. One day Sally is petrified to see MRS. STONE, matron of the orphanage, coming toward her. She gives the distress signal to GUS, the Barker, who helps Sally get away, not, however, until Mrs. Stone makes sure Princess Lalla is Sally Ford. Sally and David run away from the carnival and tramp all night. David tells Sally they will be married in the morning. With a strange fear that something will happen to prevent their marrying, Sally flees. They intend to be married. At the license bureau the clerk directs them to the "marrying parson" and they hurry away to find the parson is not at home and that they will have to wait two hours.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER 39

During the two hours that they waited for the Reverend Mr. Greer, the marrying parson, David and Sally sat stiffly side by side on a horsehair sofa, only their fingers touching shyly, listening to countless romances of eloping couples with which old Mrs. Greer regaled them in a kindly effort to help them pass the tedious time of waiting. Her daughter-in-law, recently widowed by the death of the only son of the family, trailed weakly in and out of the living room, her big, mournful black eyes devouring David's magnificent youth and vigor.

"You remind me of Sonny Bob," Mrs. Greer leaned forward in her arm chair to whisper to David. "Killed in the war he was, and Cora just can't become reconciled. Seems like the only pleasure she gets out of life now is acting as witness for weddings. And I must say she cries as beautiful and sweet as any bride's mother could. Some of the eloping brides appreciate it and some don't, but Cora means well. Once, I recollect, she spoiled a wedding. It seems that the girl's mother was dead set against this boy, and when Cora started to cry, just like a mother—"

The story went on and on, but Sally heard little of it, for her heart was suddenly desolate with need of her own mother. Lucky girls who had mothers to cry for them at their weddings! Her cold fingers gripped David's comforting warm hand spasmodically. Somewhere in the world there was a woman who was her mother, a woman who had not waited for the marriage ceremony before she succumbed to just such love as that woman's unwanted daughter now felt for David.

Understanding and pity for that harassed, shame-stricken girl that her mother must have been just 16 years ago gushed suddenly into Sally's heart. If David had not been so fine, so tender, so good—She shivered and clung more tightly to his hand. In a few minutes she would be his wife and safe, safe from Mrs. Stone, the orphan's home, the reformatory.

"I hear Mr. Greer coming in," Mrs. Greer beamed upon them and bustled from the room. She returned immediately, a plump hand resting affectionately on the shoulder of a tall, thin, stooped old man, whose sweet, bloodless, wrinkled face glowed with a faint radiance of kindness and benediction.

"This is little Miss Sally Ford and David Nash, Papa," Mrs. Greer told him. "They've been waiting patiently for two hours to get married. I've been entertaining them the best I could with some of our very own romances. I often tell Papa we ought to write stories for the magazines."

"Well, well!" The "marrying parson" rubbed his beautiful, thin hands together and smiled upon Sally and David. "You're pretty young, aren't you? But Mama and I believe in youthful marriages. I was 19 and she was 17 when we took the big step, and we've never regretted it. You have your license, I presume?"

David's hand shook noticeably as he drew the precious document from his breast pocket and offered it to the minister. Through old-fashioned gold-rimmed spectacles the minister studied the paper briefly, his lips twitching slightly with a smile.

"Well, well, Mama," he glanced over his spectacles at his beaming wife, "everything seems to be in order. Where is Cora? She's going to enjoy this wedding enormously. The more she enjoys it, the more she weeps," he explained twinkling at Sally and David. When Mrs. Greer had left the room, the old minister bent his eyes gravely upon David. "Do you know of any real reason why you two children should not be married, my boy?"

David flushed but his eyes and voice were steady as he answered. "No reason at all, sir. We are both orphans and we love each other."

Mrs. Greer and her daughter-in-law entered before the old preacher could ask any further questions, but he seemed to be quite satisfied. Taking a much-worn, limp leather book from his hip pocket, he summoned the pair to stand before him. Sally tremblingly adjusted the little dark blue felt that fitted closely over the masses of her fine black hair, and smoothed the crisp folds of her new blue taffeta dress.

"Join right hands," the minister directed.

As Sally placed her icy, trembling little hand in David's the first of the younger Mrs. Greer's promised sobs startled her so that she swayed against David, almost fainting. The boy's left arm went about her shoulders, held her close, as the opening words of the marriage ceremony fell slowly and impressively from the marrying parson's lips: "Dearly beloved—"

Peace fell suddenly upon the girl's heart and nerves. All fear left her; there was nothing in the world but beautiful words which were like a magic incantation, endowing an orphaned girl with respectability, happiness, family, an honored place in society as the wife of David Nash—

A bell shrilled loudly, shattering the beauty and the solemnity of the greatest moment in Sally's life. Behind her, on the sofa, she heard the faint rustle of Mrs. Greer's stiff silk skirt, whispers as the two witnesses conferred. The preacher's voice, which had faltered, went on, more hurried, flustered: "Do you, David, take this woman—"

Again the bell clamored, a long, shrill, angry demand. The preacher's voice faltered again, the momentous question left half asked. He looked at his wife over the top of his spectacles and nodded slightly. Mrs. Greer's skirt rustled apologetically as she hurried out of the room. Sally forced her eyes to travel upward to David's stern, set young face; their eyes locked for a moment, Sally's piteous with fright, then David answered that half-asked question loudly, emphatically, as if with the words he would defeat fate: "I do!"

A clamor of voices suddenly filled the little entrance hall beyond the parsonage parlor. Sally, recognizing both of the voices, was galvanized to swift, un-Sallylike initiative. Stepping swiftly out of the circle of David's arm, but still clinging to his hand, she sprang toward the preacher, her eyes blazing, her face pinched with fear and drained of all color.

"Please go on!" she gasped. "Please, Mr. Greer. Don't let them stop us now! Ask me—Do you take this man—?" "Please, I do, I do!"

"Sally, darling—" David was trying to restrain her, his voice heavy with pity. "I'm sorry, children," the old preacher shook his head. "I shall have to investigate this disturbance, but I promise you to continue with the ceremony if there is no legal impediment to your marriage. Just stand where you are—"

The door was flung open and Mrs. Stone, matron of the orphanage, strode into the room, panting, her heavy face red with anger and exertion. She was followed by a flustered, weeping Mrs. Greer and by a small smartly dressed little figure that halted in the doorway. Even in that first dreadful moment when Sally knew that she was trapped, that the half-performed wedding ceremony would not be completed, she was conscious of that shock of amazement and delight which had always tingled along her nerves whenever she had seen Enid Barr. But why had Enid Barr joined in the cruel pursuit of a luckless orphan whose worst sin had been running away from charity? If David's arms had not been so tightly about her, she would have tried to run away again—

"Are we too late?" Mrs. Stone demanded in the loud, harsh voice that had been a whip-lash upon Sally Ford's sensitive nerves for twelve years. "Are they married?"

"I was reading the service when you interrupted, madam," the Reverend Mr. Greer said with surprising severity. "And I shall continue it if you cannot show just cause why these two young people should not be married. May I ask who you are, madam?"

"Certainly! I am Mrs. Miranda Stone, matron of the State Orphans' Asylum of Capital City, and Sally Ford is one of my charges, a minor, a ward of the state until her eighteenth birthday. She is only sixteen years old and cannot be married without the permission of her guardians, the trustees of the orphanage. Is it clear that you cannot go on with the ceremony?" she concluded in her hard, brisk voice.

"Is this true, Sally?" the old man asked Sally gently. "Yes," she nodded, then laid her head wearily and hopelessly upon David's shoulder.

"Mrs. Stone," David began to plead with passionate intensity, one of his hands trembling upon Sally's bowed head, "for God's sake let us go on with this marriage! I love Sally and she loves me. I have never harmed her and I never will. It's not right for you to drag her back to the asylum, to spend two more years of dependence upon charity. I can support her, I'm strong, I love her—"

"Will all of you kindly leave the room and let me talk with Sally?" Mrs. Stone cut across his appeal ruthlessly. "I may as well tell you, Mr. Greer, that my friend here, Mrs. Barr, a very rich woman, intends to adopt this girl and provide her with all the advantages that wealth makes possible. She has been hunting for Sally for weeks, and it is only through her persistence and the power her wealth commands that we have been able to prevent this ridiculous marriage today."

"We shall be glad to let you talk privately with the young couple," the old minister answered with punctilious politeness. "Come, Mama, Cora!"

W-HY MOTHERS GET GRAY.

"Will you please leave the room also Mr. Nash?" Mrs. Stone went on ruthlessly, without taking time to acknowledge the old man's courtesy.

Sally's arm clung more tightly to David. "He's going to stay Mrs. Stone," she gasped, amazed at her own temerity. "If you don't let me marry David now, I shall marry him when I am eighteen. I don't want to be adopted. I only want David—"

"I think the boy had better stay," Enid Barr's lovely voice, strangely not at all arrogant now, called from the doorway.

When the minister and his wife and daughter-in-law had left the room Enid Barr softly closed the door against which she had been leaning, as if she had little interest in the drama taking place, and walked slowly toward David and Sally, who were still in each other's arms. Gone from her small, exquisite face was the look of aloof indifference, and in its place were embarrassment, wistful appeal, tenderness and, to Sally's bewilderment, the most profound humility.

"Oh, Sally, Sally!" The beautiful contralto voice was husky with tears. "Can't you guess why I want you, why I've hunted you down like this? I'm your mother, Sally."

In the next chapter Sally hears her mother's story.

ON TOWARD FIJI GOAL

ly before 2 p. m. at an average speed of nearly 100 miles an hour. Canton Island was to have been the landing place for the plane in event of emergency or if the crew decided it would be impossible for the giant trimotored Fokker monoplane to make the Fiji with its supply of gasoline.

The Southern Cross carried nearly 1,400 gallons of gasoline in its main tanks and a few additional gallons in emergency tanks when it left Barking Sands, on the island of Kauai.

Carried Little More Fuel. This supply was only slightly larger for the 3,138 mile flight to the Fijis than was carried for the 2,400 mile hop from the mainland to Honolulu.

No estimate of the remaining supply of gasoline were given as the Southern Cross sped past the Phoenix group of islands.

But the fact that it made no move to halt was taken as assurance that Captain Charles Kingsford-Smith, commander of the plane, was convinced the Southern Cross was amply fueled for the entire flight.

Beset by Rain Squalls.

The airmen were beset by rain squalls throughout the first half of the long voyage. Sometimes they dived into them headlong, but at other times the storms were so severe they were forced to climb rapidly above the black clouds.

During the night the left motor of the Southern Cross sputtered temperamental, but the fliers courageously minimized the danger. Their spirits high and their confidence undisturbed, they kept the nose of the huge three-motored craft pointed at the great constellation in the southern skies for which it was named.

The crew hoped to reach the Fiji Islands 33 hours after their departure at 5:20 a. m. (Honolulu time) yesterday from Barking Sands, Kauai. That would place their arrival at 2:20 p. m. Honolulu time or 4:50 p. m. Pacific coast time.

The route along the South Seas is dotted with islands so small that they are marked by mere dots on the largest of maps. Yet they gave hope to the fliers, for landing might be made on one of them if the plane was forced down.

Encounter More Trouble.

The trip to Suva was far more eventful than the non-stop flight last week from Oakland airport to Honolulu. The fliers had been in the air only a few hours when their messages began telling of difficulties they were encountering. Fortunately, however, the troubles were only temporary and caused no great worry among the plane's crew.

For the first four or five hundred miles everything went smoothly. Aided by a favorable wind, the Southern Cross was making good time and the fliers were confident they would reach their goal.

Then at 10:15 a. m., five hours after they had left Barking Sands, they reported a short circuit in their battery charger.

"Going to try make repairs," the message said. "Please stand by."

Only Radio Affected. Fear was expressed for a time that the plane's motors might be affected by the short circuit. Apparently, however, the trouble related only to the radio apparatus, for three-quarters of an hour later another message said the ship was "still going strong."

Then the Southern Cross began running into rain squalls. It nosed its way through them successfully for an hour, the motors never wavering. At the end of that time radio operator Warner reported that the rain clouds had passed over and that the skies overhead were clearer.

"Just had a couple of sandwiches and some nice hot coffee," he said. That was at 12:30 p. m. he had messaged fifteen minutes previously that he and his companions were "still going good."

The plane was speeding over the sea at a rate of more than 100 miles an hour, 20 miles an hour faster than it had traveled during most of the California-Hawaii voyage, despite its heavier gasoline load. It was being pushed along by winds at its rear.

Add fliers ... s15 S1 oued b142s7w "You can't stop Smithy and ourselves now," Warner said. "We are going beautifully."

Speed Is Cut Down.

That message showed the rains had cut down the speed of the plane from 101.20 miles an hour to 92.08 miles an hour during the afternoon.

"Ulm drew a cartoon of Harry's eyes bulging out when the motor sputtered," Warner said. "We are going good now with a slight breeze to help us, and it looks favorable in all respects. All the motors are now okay."

Then, 35 minutes later, came two messages which told of a battle between the Southern Cross and a storm. "It looks like a race between us and the clouds," Warner said at 7:10 p. m. "We must rise over this storm."

Six minutes later he reported they were "circling for altitude." Then, in another four minutes came the message: "The motors are straining and we have climbed to 7,500 feet."

At that time they were about 1,450 miles southwest of the Hawaiian Islands.

The aviator's farewell to Hawaii was colorful. Arising before daybreak, they went to Barking Sands to find a crowd of Kauai natives waiting for the flier's departure, the natives had remained awake all night, squatting around fires. The thinnest of hazes hung over the island.

Radio Hook-up Wrong. The four airmen arrived and began

A SPANISH WAR HOOP.
Spaniards, the Saints of the Earth, Americans, the Sinners of the World—Long Live Everybody.

Havana, April 22.—The following is the full text of the proclamation issued by the autonomous colonial government of Cuba:

"President of the court of secretaries of the island of Cuba, to the inhabitants of Cuba:

"The colonial government, the real representative of the people of Cuba, is threatened with a most unjust attack by the United States, an attack which, notwithstanding its veil of hypocrisy, threatens to restrict our liberty and well being. It forces us to submit to the world a most solemn protest against this iniquitous offense.

"We rely on your patriotism and self-denial, on your courage and enthusiasm, to assert our common nationality and rights in defending the homes and the future of our children. You will instantly answer to the urgent call to arms which, in the name of this nation, has been sent to us by authorities of the island. Never at any time in the history of the world has such contempt been shown for international law and justice; never has such an attempt been made as this undertaking by the United States to plunder the island of Cuba, occupied by Spain four centuries ago, when that republic did not exist, save in the imagination of the colonizers of our race. The island belongs to the Spanish nation by sacred and indisputable title, claims that the ambition and pride of a covetous and hostile people vainly wish to ignore.

"For the greater part of the North American territory was discovered and explored by our fathers—and that exploit is for their eternal memory. The mighty Mississippi covers the remains of Hernando Desoto, a former governor and captain general of this island. None of the alleged pretexts justify the proposed violation of this island. Nor do the pretexts themselves exist in the hearts and minds of educated people. It is not true that the people of Cuba have taken up arms and that all are in combat against the sovereignty of the mother country. This statement is scornfully denied. It is not true that Spain has refused to satisfy the just aspiration of the Cubans, because we are satisfied with the constitutional basis of autonomy.

"The duty of all is to repel such an outrage and such an odious scheme. With unanimity and decision let us follow in the imperishable steps and actions of the heroic defenders of this capital, who, over a century ago contended with the invading hosts under the English Lord Albemarle. As Spaniards we owe this duty to our blood and our history. As inhabitants of Cuba we owe it to her. Our strength must be manly and energetic and true to the free destinies of our race.

"The object is worthy of our sacrifices. Let our souls rise to the heights of our trial and our thoughts and actions to the loftiness of our patriotic duties. Long live Spain; long live the King Don Alphonso XIII; long live the queen regent."

Beheaded by the Spaniards.

New York, May 7.—A dispatch from Key West says: Charles H. Thrall, who has just escaped from Havana, brings news of a man arrested in Havana last Saturday at Hotel Hasaje, supposed to be an American reporter. Inquiries at the hotel and at the British consulate failed to elicit any information as to who he was or what paper he represented. The room was searched and dispatches were found open on the table which gave information about the work done in the fortifications and battery. He was to have been tried as a spy and is probably killed by this time.

A special from Tampa says: A telegram to General Lacite, received here, tonight, gives the information that Major Smith, who on April 24 landed at Calbarien to escort a party to General Gobe's camp, has been captured by the Spaniards and killed. The message was signed by a Cuban officer named Lorenz. He has been with Captain Dorst of the Fourth cavalry, who, with two other officers, was sent by General Miles to confer with the insurgents.

The telegram is brief. It merely says that when his captors discovered his identity and nationality they beheaded him. The news is regarded as authentic. Nothing is said of the fate of the newspaper men accompanying him.

Where President Will Establish Summer White House

Cedar Island Lodge, 39 miles from Superior, Wisconsin, has been selected by President Coolidge as his summer playground. And it has nearly everything a summer playground should have. Here's the bungalow fronting on the Brule river, in which the President will live. Nearby, also fronting on the river, is a separate dining hall. Here is a striking picture of it. The lodge was built by the late Henry Clay Pierce, oil magnate.

Latest of British Dominions to Accept American Invitation in Peace Measure.

Washington, June 4.—Canada is the latest of the British dominions to accept the American invitation to become a party to the proposed renunciation of war treaty.

In a note published Saturday, which was in reply to the invitation sent May 22, Canada endorsed the war renunciation principle as afforded "to the peoples of the world a new and notable opportunity of ensuring peace" and said it would "have pleasure in cooperating in future negotiations with a view to becoming a signatory to a treaty such as is proposed" by the United States.

Negro Slayer, Found in River, Is Buried

Boonville, Mo., June 4.—The body of Ocie Wilson, negro slayer, was buried here today after it had been found in the Missouri river by a fisherman.
Wilson, who killed Romeo Logan, 35, negro, in a gambling argument, was taken from Saline county officers last week by a large number of negroes.
His legs had been wired together. No other marks had been found.

Congregationalists Sail for U. S. Visit

1,200 Members of English Church Seek Better Understanding Between Nations.

Liverpool, June 4.—Twelve hundred members of the English Congregational Church sailed on the White Star liner Celtic for Boston Saturday on one of the largest pilgrimages in modern church history. The Celtic is chartered by the pilgrims and will bring them back to Liverpool on June 25.

The Congregationalists who started for the new world today, many of them leaving their native land for the first time, represented a complete cross-section of English religious life. Every district in England was represented. The voyagers ranged from members of the larger London congregations to those who worship at churches in remote villages. Ministers walked up the gang-plank with professional men, trades people and laymen of various descriptions. There were many women among the passengers.

"We hope that our journey will create a better understanding between the two great English-speaking nations," the Reverend A. G. Sleep told the United Press. "It is just a family visit, that is all. We are going over to visit our cousins on the other side, to shake hands with them, to learn to know them and help them become better acquainted with us."

First Photo From Honolulu of Trans-Pacific Flyers

—Transmitted by Radiophoto and Telephoto. Copyright, 1928, NEA Service, Inc. Reproduction prohibited. By means of two remarkable inventions—radiophoto and telephoto—this picture showing the arrival of the trans-Pacific flyers at Honolulu Friday afternoon (United States time) was flashed 5000 miles over land and water in less than four hours. The photo shows Captain Kingsford-Smith, Relief Pilot G. P. T. Ulm and Radioman James Warner of the "Southern Cross" being greeted at Wheeler Field, near Honolulu, by Governor Farrington of Hawaii and two of the Dole race flyers. From left to right are Farrington, Warner, Martin Jensen (Dole flyer), Kingsford-Smith, Ulm and Art Goebel, winner of the Dole race. The picture was taken by an NEA photographer at Wheeler Field, transmitted by radio from Honolulu to San Francisco and thence across the United States by telephoto wires. Observe the festive Hawaiian leis which the governor of the islands has placed around the necks of the waring flyers.

No Games Played in County League

Rain Causes Postponement of All Baseball Games.—To Be Played on Week Days.

No games were played yesterday in the Nodaway county baseball league. Rain, which was general over the section, caused the postponements.

The ruling in the league is that postponed games must be played where they affect the standings and the games must be played through the week. The way the games were scheduled yesterday means that all of the games will have to be played.

The results of games between Maryville and Quitman, Hopkins and Bolekow, Barnard and Guilford and Burlington Junction and Clearmont might throw any of the Maryville, Quitman, Hopkins, Barnard or Clearmont clubs into the lead, or at least a tie for the lead.

The games for next Sunday are Bolekow at Maryville, Quitman at Hopkins, Clearmont at Barnard, Guilford at Burlington Junction.

U. S. Tennis Team to Sail Saturday

Clean Sweep Is Made of Series With Japan.—Junior Coen Wins Match.

Chicago, June 4.—After a clean sweep of their final American zone matches with Japan, the United States Davis Cup team will sail next Saturday for Europe.

The team will be composed of William T. Tilden II, captain, George Lott of Chicago, John Hennessey of Indianapolis and Wilbur F. Coen, Jr., Kansas City youth. They will be met in London by Francis T. Hunter, another member of the team.

Tilden defeated Yoshiro Ohta yesterday 6-8, 6-3, 6-1 and 6-0 in the final singles round, which had no effect on the international matches, since the United States already had won three out of five rounds.

Coen defeated Tamio Abe, 7-9, 6-2, 6-4 and 7-5. The youngster appeared nervous and over-anxious in his first set, but after losing it he quieted down and took the remaining sets.

WATCHING THE SCOREBOARD.

By United Press
Yesterday's Hero—Jimmy Foxx of the Athletics, who hit a home run with two men on in the ninth inning at Comiskey park. However, Ted Lyons relieved Thomas, checked the rally, and the White Sox won, 6 to 5.

The Yankees had an easy time at Detroit again, increasing their lead over the mackmen by a full game with a 7 to 2 victory. Lou Gehrig's home run in the fifth—his eleventh of the season—was the first hit made off Earl Whitehill, who blew up in the seventh and was replaced by Stoner.

Art Nehf, former Giant, was roughly treated by his ex-mates at the Polo grounds and driven from the box as the Cubs took a 10 to 5 licking.

The Pirates won a stormy fourteen inning battle at Brooklyn, 9 to 7, the fans hurling pot bottles and other missiles at umpires Reardon, Moran and Wilson. Dissatisfaction with a decision which robbed "Jigger" Statz of an alleged shoe string catch and allowed two Pirate runs caused the outburst.

The Boston Red Sox moved into fifth place by defeating the Cleveland Indians, 4 to 3.

St. Louis, Mo., June 4.—A shortage of $4,483 was found in the books of Everett G. Cover, former teller of the bank of Maplewood and Trust Company here who absconded with funds of the bank May 15, officials of the bank announced.

Helen Wills Takes French Tennis Title

Experts Agree She Is Greatest Woman Player in World—Not Excepting Lenglen.

Roland Garros Stadium, Paris, June 4.—Miss Helen Wills of California won the women's singles tennis championship of France today, defeating Miss Eileen Bennett of England in straight sets 6-1, 6-2.

Miss Wills thus became the champion of the three leading tennis countries—the United States, Great Britain and France. Not even the great Suzanne Lenglen was able to do that.

Miss Wills Hailed as Best in World

French Tennis Experts Agree She Could Beat Suzanne Lenglen Now.—Into Finals.

Roland Garros Stadium, Paris, June 4.—Helen Wills of California, scheduled to meet Eileen Bennett of England in the finals of the women's singles in the French national championships today, has been accepted by tennis experts who have watched her play during the past fortnight, as the greatest woman player in the world.

Rene La Coste and other French stars who have observed Helen in action at Paris now declare her better than their own Suzanne Lenglen.

"She would beat Suzanne—and most men," said a French expert, who hitherto held Miss Lenglen invincible.

Henri Cochet won the men's singles championship, defeating Rene LaCoste in their final match, 5-7, 6-3, 6-1, 6-3.

Christabel Hardie, English girl who was Miss Wills' victim in the semi-finals Sunday, was completely overwhelmed by the fury of the American champion's attack. Realizing that her only chance to make points was to keep the ball in play and leave it to Helen to make the errors, Miss Hardie put up a game but fruitless fight.

Miss Wills refused to meet her opponent at a soft game of exchanges, but forced a terrific pace, hitting like a man, crashing into the English player's soft service with slashing returns, sharply angled across the court.

She kept Miss Hardie constantly on the run, and had to make not more than three or four defensive shots during the match, which was concluded in straight sets, 6-1, 6-1.

Sport Tabloids

Chicago, June 4.—Mickey Walker, middleweight champion, and Ace Hudkins, who will meet for the title in White Sox park here June 21, will arrive in Chicago this week. Walker will meet Jack Malone in a ten-round bout at St. Paul tomorrow night.

Chicago, June 4.—The Big Ten baseball season ended with Michigan, Iowa and Purdue finishing in the order named. Michigan lost only one game out of twelve.

St. Louis, Mo.—America's Olympic team this year probably will include Harold Osborne, holder of the world's high jump record of 6 feet 8 1/4 inches and Rufus Hargard, intercollegiate champion, who both leaped 6 feet 5 1/2 inches in the Western A. A. U. track meet here Saturday.

St. Louis, Mo.—Chester Nelson, Century Cycle Club, St. Louis, won a berth on the American Olympic team Sunday by winning the 105.3 mile trial race here in 5:50:53 from a field of nine, despite three punctured tires which increased his time by ten minutes.

$22,532 for Hoover in West Virginia

Manager Charges Huge Sums Spent for Goff.—Scripps-Howard Papers for Hoover.

Washington, June 4.—The unsuccessful Hoover campaign in West Virginia cost $22,532, Harry Woodyard, West Virginia manager for Secretary Hoover, told the Senate campaign committee today.

Woodyard said $18,101 had been raised both in and out of the state. In addition, his personal expenses amounted to $3,831.

All the money has been spent, and outstanding bills will amount to about $1,000 more, he said.

Woodyard said he had charged before the primary that enormous sums were being spent by those working against Secretary Hoover for Senator Goff, native son candidate.

He said he knew of nothing specific but had based his charge on his general knowledge of Goff's activities.

Lowell Mellett, editor of the Washington Daily News, a Scripps-Howard newspaper, testified that the Scripps-

Howard papers had paid $5,000 for the privilege of publishing the life of Governor Smith of New York and Secretary of Commerce Hoover. His testimony was given in connection with previous testimony of Senator Heflin of Alabama, who demanded that Mellett be summoned to tell what arrangement was made for publication of the United Feature Syndicate's biography of Smith, called "Up From the City Streets."

"The insinuation that we were paid something for publishing this life is untrue," Mellett said.

"It is also untrue, of course, that we received any financial return for supporting Governor Smith for the Democratic nomination."

Mellett told how editors of the 26 Scripps-Howard newspapers met in January and voted to support Hoover for President, with Smith as second choice.
